

Ethical Pioneers

An interactive masterclass for the new entrepreneur

November 24 - December 5, 2008

Ethical pioneers - invest in your development with this dynamic, inquiry-led course that draws together approaches from the mainstream to the radical within the uniquely engaged learning environment of Schumacher College.

“... a safe & supportive environment to explore yourself and analyse your key qualities. This led to a solid confirmation of personal leadership skills. To launch yourself out there, you first have to know yourself and be comfortable with that, and the course facilitated that beautifully.”

Our contributors offer insights from personal experience of ethical enterprise in the charity sector, grass roots projects, corporate finance, social entrepreneurship and design innovation. All bring experience of what it takes to create, lead and maintain a values-led organisation.

“... a kick start at the perfect time! Excellent first hand advice from those entrepreneurs who had ‘been there’ yet were still passionate about the cause and their business inspired huge confidence to ‘just do it’!!”

Learn from leaders in the field, build your networks and develop essential skills to help your enterprise thrive.

Ethical Pioneers

November 24 - December 5, 2008

This two-week course is designed with sessions that are fine-tuned to respond to participants' needs and interests.

It balances content with expert coaching, peer networking and time to 'workshop' your idea. Areas of study and discussion include: challenges and opportunities, fundraising, networking, leadership and values.

This course is designed for existing and aspiring ethical entrepreneurs who are developing a project and want to move their vision forward, or who wish to embark on a new way of working. Previous participants have gone on to develop projects that build bridges between formal institutions and grassroots communities in dynamic and productive ways. Others have used the course to deepen their skills and confidence as leaders for change.

For further information, and details about course contributors please see our website.
